Ordering Food.

You're a simple admin in charge of a restaurant's ordering system and you also manage the menu for the restaurant. As the person in charge, you can manipulate (CRUD) for the foods in your restaurant, and you can take orders.

Your menu items have a name to refer to, a description for what it is, and a price for the food. You can manipulate all of this, as in adding a new item to the menu, editing existing menus, looking at your current menu, and deleting items from the menu.

This system also allows you to make orders and view the orders that have been made. The orders don't have to be deleted or edited. Important information regarding orders involve the customer's name, as well as what items they ordered and how much, as well as a total price for all the items.
